Monitor your servers without the extra GUI software. The built in Windows Server 2008/Windows Server 2003/Windows Server 2000/Windows XP/Windows NT and Windows 95 Agent will monitor your server and execute the actions you specify when the state changes. This version includes a review of how the state changes. If a change occurs that will trigger a failure, you will be notified. If the server has been down for too long (hours), you will be notified. If an application is running in a critical state, you will be notified and the application will be restarted. An important aspect of this agent is that if a change is made to the state, the agent will also be notified. You can program the agent to call your own application, script, program, etc. when an event happens. You can even call an SQL database or use a 3rd party API to run your own custom scripts. The free version is limited to monitoring and the logging of events. The pro version gives you the ability to monitor, log, and configure a rule-based system to be executed when a monitored event occurs. This is how a server administrator can monitor and handle failures. Limitations: [?] 30 days trial Are you serious? I would not advice a user to take a product which need to be licensed after 30 days trial. By the way, if you are an end user, try out FreeSpaceMonitor (free to download and evaluate). It is a free software which does exactly what you would expect it to do. you need to register your product and it does not offer a free trial period. ### What's New In ServerMonitor Lite?

ServerMonitor Lite is a good mix of functionality for important servers at a low price. Popular notification methods are supported so you can find out about the state of your servers if something isn't right. Monitor the free disk space on server drives. You can set the warning threshold in absolute size, or percentage of disk space. Includes reports and auto-configuration. Monitor one or many pages on a web site. Checks for positive cases (text that must be found), negative cases (alerts if error text found) and if the page has changed at all. Response times are checked and recorded, and reports can be generated to understand trends. Checks any specified Windows Event Logs (Application, System, Security plus custom event logs) and executes actions you specify if a source you're interested in adds an event to the log. Tests a connection/device by periodically testing it with a ping. No response or too great a delay triggers actions. Ping response times are recorded in a database for reporting and graphing. You can monitor your mail servers (POP3, SMTP & IMAP) and validate that they are running and accepting incoming connections.
